

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A broadcast receiver apparatus includes a video/data separation unit separating video from data included in a broadcast wave, and a CRT displaying the video separated by the video/data separation unit, and displaying a button on the video based on button data included in the separated data. The CRT displays video associated data corresponding to a button selected by a viewer. Therefore, the correspondence between video and video associated data can easily be grasped.